Report description:

Eyewear suffered a significant, double-digit decline in demand during the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020, albeit not to the same extent as overall personal accessories. All types of eyewear were negatively impacted by restrictions on store operations, disruptions to production, and enforced home seclusion as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. However, sales of eyewear were able to make a quick recovery after most shops reopened in 2021. Spectacles was one category that did particularly well since mos...
