Report description:

Synthetic nicotine products took e-vapour products by storm in 2020, meeting the demand for flavour variety and convenience that opened up following the FDA's January 2020 flavour ban on tobacco-derived brands and ongoing PMTA uncertainty. Many customers accustomed to smoking flavoured vapour products soon found familiar alternatives in these synthetic products. The largest companies selling these alternatives had declining operations for years, sitting in the shadow of brands such as JUUL, but...
