Report description:

Having rapidly grown in popularity during the early part of the forecast period, the prevalence of both e-vapour and heated tobacco products began to decline in 2019, and this trend continued during the latter part of the review period. Heightened media focus on the health risks associated with using these products played a significant role in this. Nonetheless, retail constant value sales of heated tobacco and particularly e-vaping products continued to expand during 2021. E-vapour products are...
