Report description:

Tobacco in North Macedonia showed an improved performance in total current value sales terms in 2021, with growth moderately surpassing that recorded in 2020. This was mainly due to unit price increases resulting from changes in excise duty rates, as the dominant category of cigarettes continued to see volume sales contract in line with the well-established trend of decline in smoking prevalence among the population. Rising health awareness is the main driver of this trend, though in recent year...
