Report description:

While there was a small rebound in the demand for digital camcorders in 2021, imaging devices is set to continue the review period trend of strong decreases in retail volume saes over 2022. The ongoing drop in retail volume sales is tied strongly to smartphone substitution. Manufacturers of smartphones are placing greater emphasis on camera and video quality in terms of new product developments, to the extent that smartphones can easily meet the imaging device needs of most households. With high...
