Report description:

Tissue and hygiene saw current value recovery in 2021, following on from the decline seen in 2020 as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. Higher living costs and a strong tradition for cheaper cloth alternatives however continue to limit usage. In the forecast period, more hectic lifestyles and a search for convenience should support growth, as more women enter the workforce. However, ongoing economic uncertainty and political instability could continue to limit spending on tissue and hygiene.
