Report description:

Overall, consumer health in Romania is expected to see an outstanding performance over 2022, with most categories projected to register double-digit retail value growth. However, high inflation and higher operating costs have exerted upward pressure on prices. Thus, retail volume increases are generally set to be slower than retail current value rises within categories. Nonetheless, retail sales growth is supported by the recovery from the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic as the country reopens m...
