Report description:

During the pandemic, local consumers increasingly struggled with dry eyes in line with prolonged exposure to digital screens. According to the Singapore National Eye Centre (SNEC), it saw 323 new referrals in 2021, marking an approximately 15% increase from 281 in 2019 before the pandemic. Dry eye disease has developed due to changing consumer habits. Given that remote working became the default arrangement for many employees, increasing numbers of consumers spent longer periods staring at compu...
