Report description:

Retail sales of vitamins experienced a slowdown at the end of 2021 and into 2022, primarily due to the successful rollout of the UK's COVID-19 vaccination programme. The boom in demand for vitamins in 2020 and at the beginning of 2021 was short-lived as it was mainly driven by fear of catching the virus and its effects on one's health. However, as an increasing number of consumers received their vaccinations and sanitary measures were gradually lifted, concerns among the population started to wa...
