Report description:

While wound care is expected to register an increase in current value sales, constant value sales and volume sales are expected to fall slightly in 2022. Rising inflation as a result of the energy crisis stemming from the war in Ukraine is pushing up retail prices and dampening volume sales somewhat. Gauze, tape and other wound care is expected to register the highest current value growth. Non-grocery retail channels remain the largest channel for wound care in 2022.
