Report description:

Systemic analgesics is showing almost double the growth rate of topical analgesics thanks to its wider availability, broader range of products and more attractive unit prices. Stressful jobs are causing increased demand for self-medication. Consumers do not like to take advantage of paid sick leave as they are afraid to lose their jobs, especially during a time of economic crisis. This will drive demand for analgesics products that enable a faster recovery without having to stay at home for a lo...
