Report description:

As part of a general healthier lifestyle trend, there is a growing propensity of Turkish consumers to engage in outdoor activities, sports, and exercise, and this is boosting demand for analgesics due to the higher risk of injuries. Although the pandemic restrictions tempered this trend somewhat during the era of lockdowns, prior to the onset of COVID-19, a growing number of middle- and upper-income consumers were spending more of their spare time exercising, leading to an increase in sporting i...
