Report description:

After peaking in 2020, the rate of growth in retail current value sales of consumer health continued to slow in 2022, though it remained healthy. The slow rollout of the COVID-19 programme helped to bolster demand for consumer health, especially analgesics and vitamins and dietary supplements. Moreover, demand for consumer health largely remains limited to affluent urban consumers, with those on low incomes and rural dwellers still largely reliant on unpackaged herbal/traditional remedies.

Euromonitor International's Consumer Health in Tanzania report offers a comprehensive guide to the size and shape of the market at a national level.
