Report description:

Remote and hybrid working models have become the new normal since lockdown restrictions were fully lifted in the summer of 2021 in the UK. With parents spending less time at home, and significant increases in prices, baby food is looking at its first year of retail current value growth since 2018. With the return to more active lifestyles, both social and professional, the need for convenience due to less time for preparing home-made food for babies is set to drive retail volume growth in dried,...
