Report description:

Retail value sales of analgesics are increasing in 2022, recording robust sales growth, despite the healthy sales growth registered in 2020 and 2021. Sales growth during these years were due to concerns about the coronavirus and stockpiling behaviour as consumers feared being able to obtain medicine when needed. In addition, the COVID-19 pandemic continues to shape sales of analgesics in 2022, as many consumers still prefer to self-medicate and more people are taking OTC products, in particular...
