Report description:

Following strong growth in 2021 due to consumers stockpiling analgesics to manage COVID-19 symptoms, the category is expected to see its sales growth strongly decelerate in 2022. This is because the COVID-19 virus is no longer a severe threat to the Norwegian population given the success of the vaccination programme and the general subsiding of the pandemic. As such, consumption and demand for analgesics is starting to normalise for most people. Adult acetaminophen was particularly sought-after...
