Report description:

The high incidence of COVID-19 cases during 2020 and 2021 resulted in Algerians facing restrictions on various aspects of their lives. As such, most Algerians travelled less frequently and was unable to eat out as regularly as before which resulted in fewer cases of functional intestinal and stomach disorders and alimentary toxicological infections. Consequently, as Algerian consumers return to their pre-pandemic lifestyles in 2022 thanks to fewer restrictions, retail value sales growth are incr...
