Report description:

In 2022, the digital camera category is set to see volume sales fall, continuing the decline seen in the category in recent years. Nikon reported negative guidance for the year as the semiconductor chip shortage adversely affected manufacturers' shipment rates. In 2022, smartphone brands continued to release new models with advanced imaging technology, making digital cameras an unnecessary purchase for consumers as most own smartphones. While even high-end smartphones cannot match the quality of...
