Report description:

Consumers have spent less time outside of the home during the pandemic, leading to fewer injuries which need treating. Therefore, demand for wound care has declined overall, with another surge in COVID-19 cases in early 2022 leading to the reintroduction of various measures to control the spread of the virus, including home seclusion. However, these measures are being gradually relaxed in the second half of the year, and therefore, the number of family outdoor activities is increasing. This is S...
