Report description:

The Omicron variant of Coronavirus (COVID-19) had only a limited impact on airlines' performance in 2021, and almost no effect in 2022. Newly discovered "Monkeypox" infections are also unlikely to significantly disrupt airline's recovery in 2022. COVID-19 restrictions are being phased out and more passengers are able to travel uninterrupted. This results in increased demand for flights. On the other hand, the War in Ukraine from February 2022 has impacted air travel in Europe. This, in combinati...
