Report description:

Declining sales trends continue in imaging devices in 2022, following a slight improvement seen in 2021 (as pandemic restrictions started to lessen) compared to 2020 (in lockdown). However, this was only a small upwards trend considering that imaging devices have been in decline for a decline, due to the growing use of smartphones for taking photographs and recording video. While the picture quality of dedicated digital cameras and camcorders may be superior to that of smartphones, this gap is...
