Report description:

Despite the challenges presented by COVID-19 sales of dairy products and alternatives have remained stable since 2020. However, the industry is now being impacted by the rising cost of raw materials and imports in 2022. The government stated in 2021 that it expects to be self-sufficient in terms of liquid milk by 2025. Baby food sales have also remained stable although high breastfeeding rates remain a significant barrier to growth.
