Report description:

The COVID-19 pandemic led to a variety of supply chain disruptions, that spurred shortages and price increases across many industries. Meat production suffered during the early stages of the pandemic, as several meatpacking plants were shut down for weeks in 2020, and many beef- and pork-packing facilities were operating at significantly reduced capacity. The lack of slaughter capacity led to a substantial reduction in slaughter rates which, when combined with increased retail demand, led to lar...
