Report description:

Cameroon has not been as affected by the energy crisis stemming from the war in Ukraine as many other countries. Rising global energy prices in 2022 are giving a boost to government coffers and helping stabilise the economy. However, ongoing civil conflict is restraining economic growth. All the same, overall inflation is modest, and within analgesics, there is expected to be both healthy current and constant value growth, in line with previous year, as society returns to normal post lockdowns.
