Report description:

The historic inflation rates seen in Chile seen during the year have forced many players from different industries to raise their prices as their own costs increase. At the same time, excess liquidity in the economy is waning, including government aid, which, combined with the high inflation, is resulting in slowing demand for many products deemed non-essential following historic growth rates in 2021. However, these challenging conditions do not appear to have impacted demand for juice in 2022,...
