Report description:

After two years of strong growth, consumer appliances is set to see a decline in volume sales in 2022, with major appliances being particularly affected. A significant proportion of consumers had already replaced their old appliances and invested in equipping their kitchens by 2022. In addition, demand has also been dampened by the deteriorating economic situation, with the high rate of inflation and the rising cost of food, energy and car fuel affecting families' day life, together with the ris...
