Report description:

Categories such as food processors, mixers, and blenders posted an increase in demand during the lockdown period driven by consumers cooking more at home. Following this spike in sales, food preparation appliances is set to see a notable decline in 2022. The re-opening of the market and return to normality is adversely affecting the category's performance. Consumers are allocating their incomes to entertainment and travel instead of appliances. At the same time, because penetration increased dur...
