Report description:

Sales of refrigeration appliances are set to increase in 2022 driven by the launch of the government subsidy for the replacement of refrigeration appliances in the beginning of June 2022. The subsidy covers from 35% to 50% of the appliance's value and is available to all households, although lower income households and households with more than two children (as well as other groups that fit certain social criteria such as a member of a household with a disability) are prioritised. Consumers can...
