Report description:

Soft drinks are expected to register healthy current retail value growth, though retail volume growth is expected to be much more moderate, as inflation takes hold. The war in Ukraine is pushing up global fuel prices and impacting retail prices and dampening volume growth, as a result. Volume growth through on-trade channels is expected to be slightly higher. With such high prices, especially for imports, imports from China in particular are suffering. The bigger companies are also faring better...
