Report description:

Continued inflation on poultry feed prices made the retail prices of eggs rise sharply for a couple of months in 2022. However, from the supply side, daily national production of eggs stood strong, ensuring egg prices have not risen beyond a certain level. Despite the rise in the price of eggs, per capita consumption is still set to rise in 2022, as it is still one of the most affordable sources of protein available for consumption in the market. Moreover, eggs are easily accessible and available...
