Report description:

Growth in the number of packaging unit volumes used in shelf stable fruit and vegetables slowed in 2021. This followed the spike in sales seen in 2020, which could be attributed to the pandemic, and the restrictions introduced to contain its spread when it hit the country. This not only saw consumers stockpiling shelf stable fruit and vegetables thanks to their long shelf life, but also extra demand due to the additional home cooking due to the fact that Polish consumers were spending much more...
