Report description:

In 2022, sales of laundry care products continued to grow modestly as inflation and economic uncertainties continued to impact consumer behaviour. Many lower- and middle-income households were either purchasing less expensive local products via e-commerce or washing clothes less frequently, which meant that people were using fewer laundry care products. This represented a continuation of a trend from 2021, with the category, therefore failing to return to pre-pandemic growth in 2022.
