Report description:

Plant-based dairy continues to account for low value sales and in 2022 is expected to register some current value growth but minimal volume growth. Plant-based milk and plant-based yoghurt are the main products available. All the same, value sales have increased slowly over the review period. The growth is supported by increased allergies, such as lactose intolerance, a growing number of vegans and also another cohort of consumers that believe that cutting down on dairy is healthier and better f...
