Report description:

The year 2022 cannot be discussed without highlighting the volatility seen in prices due to inflation. Inflationary pressures have led to price increases across categories in the grocery aisles. At the same time, climate change, and the impact of some level of normalisation as the pandemic has eased, straining supply by increasing demand, has led to many supply issues. The impact of climate change is particularly seen in the supply of agricultural foods, with yields being low in categories such...
