Report description:

Egypt hospital market is anticipated to register growth with an impressive CAGR in the forecast period, 2023-2027, on the account of growing patient count in the country due to various diseases, disorders, infections, etc. Rapidly increasing instances of chronic diseases and rapidly evolving pathogens causing infectious diseases further drive the growth of the Egypt hospitals market in the upcoming five years. The increasing prevalence of communicable diseases, health issues like sexually transmitted diseases, vaccine-preventable diseases, etc. are further supporting the growth of the Egypt hospitals market in the next five years.

Growing Disease Burden Drives Market Growth

The high prevalence of communicable, non-communicable, tropical, and chronic diseases is rapidly increasing and surging the demand for advanced treatments for these diseases in the population, thus driving the growth of the Egypt hospitals market in the upcoming five years. A large population in the country is suffering from diseases like malaria, tuberculosis, and HIV/AIDS, and the number is rapidly increasing. The demands to provide proper treatments and better patient care also supports the growth of the Egypt hospitals market in the next five years. The estimated number of hospitals per 100,000 inhabitants in Egypt is expected to be 0.60 in 2021. Thus, the demand for further construction of hospitals is increasing and aiding the market growth.

Furthermore, the increasing number of patient counts can be due to growing lifestyle issues, unhealthy food habits, and communicable diseases. Factors like long working hours, unhealthy food habits, along with lack of physical activity, are responsible for the increasing cases of lifestyle diseases like diabetes, obesity, hypertension, etc. the rapid increase of these diseases is anticipated to further substantiate the growth of the Egypt hospitals market in the future five years.
