Report description:

While PepsiCo's soft drinks sales held up well during the pandemic, they were stagnating in 2022, as the divestment of juice brands like Tropicana and Naked offset the company's organic growth. Although PepsiCo's sales still show a strong bias towards the US market, not least due to its dominant share of sports drinks in its domestic market, it continues to grow in other regions of the world, especially Latin America, where its carbonates products are particularly popular.
