Report description:

Demand for higher indoor air quality continued to contribute positively to air care sales in 2022, as the category was further driven by hygiene trends. Local consumers continued to focus on hygiene in the home due to a general interest in maintaining a clean and healthy living environment post-pandemic. Therefore, demand for high levels of air quality remained during 2022 as consumers were aware of the airborne nature of COVID-19. Although concerns around the virus have generally waned, South A...
