Report description:

Sales of dishwashing previously boosted by the pandemic stabilised somewhat in 2022 as the majority of consumers started to return to their normal work, school and other pre-pandemic activities. The significant rise in the frequency of cooking at home, largely aided by pandemic-induced lockdowns, partially waned as consumers spent greater time outdoors during the course of the year. Consequently, there was less of an upward trajectory in 2022 compared to 2020.
