Report description:

2022 experienced rising demand for food storage items in current value terms, including bread bins and storage jars. Similarly, there was a current value increase in sales of kitchen utensils, including kitchen knives and cooking spoons. This was mainly due to the high inflation rate in this year, which led consumers to opt for cooking at home instead of dining out at horeca establishments. As a result, these products became more useful and saw increased demand in 2022.
