Report description:

In 2022, as pandemic-related restrictions eased, local consumers were starting to spend less time at home. This was the primary reason for the notable slowdown in value sales growth of home furnishings compared to 2021. In addition, there were rising prices of raw materials, labour, and transportation due to unstable global economies and the war in Ukraine, impacting supply chains. Hence, consumers postponed big-ticket purchases such as indoor furniture until they felt more confident to make maj...
