Report description:

The performance of deodorants in 2022 was impacted by poor economic conditions and rising price points due to the depreciation of the local currency. As such, retail volume growth suffered during the year. However, current retail value growth was strong, due to the steep rise in unit prices. Strong inflation in the economy reduced consumer spending power, whilst a reduction in employment also reduced the consumer base, as many people look to use deodorants while at work.
