Report description:

Costa Rica's inflation is the highest in Central America. The year-on-year inflation measured by the consumer price index (as of August 2022) is 11.48%, according to the National Statistics Institute (INEC). Inflationary pressure increased further in the second quarter of 2022, and the rising cost of living resulted in most consumers becoming more cautious spenders, focusing on essential items and increasingly on price.
