Report description:

Sun care is a very season-specific product, with sales spiking in three identified time periods throughout the year. These are Holy Week (a week-long holiday which aligns with summer), the month of June (during which schools are on holiday for two weeks), and the end of the year (when many people take two-week holidays, visit beaches, and take outdoor trips). However, during the rest of the year, sales in sun care remain relatively flat and without any major changes. This confirms how the daily...
