Report description:

Younger consumers are more accepting of daily sun protection use in the United Arab Emirates. Indeed, the importance of incorporating sun screen into a daily skin care routine has become more widely recognised. This shift in attitude can be attributed to increased education about the long-term effects of sun exposure, as well as a growing interest in preventative skin care. By making sun protection a regular part of their routines, consumers can reduce the risk of premature ageing, sun damage, a...
