Report description:

The Kenya Bureau of Standards (KEBS) announced that it has seized and banned 435 cosmetics from the market. The products include skin brightening lotions, creams, gels and soaps that contain hydroquinone, mercury, and its compounds. Exposure to high levels of these elements over long periods of time can lead to serious health problems, such as kidney damage and digestive illnesses, thus the recent cull of so many products which were deemed to be potentially unsafe. In turn, however, this paves t...
