Report description:

Thailand witnessed an increase in consumer confidence in 2022, which was attributed to the reopening of the country to inbound tourism and an increase in international trade. However, there was a surge in the inflation rate due to soaring energy prices which was the result of Russia's invasion of Ukraine in early 2022. This increase in energy costs led to a rise in agricultural expenses and subsequently food prices, contributing to an overall inflation rate of 6.1% in Thailand.
