Report description:

In 2022, there was a further fall in volume sales. Twice yearly tax hikes on cigarettes, which are scheduled to continue until 2025, are making cigarettes very expensive. This was on top of high inflation in 2022, which was caused by an energy crisis stemming from the war in Ukraine. This has resulted in a further slight fall in smoking prevalence. Some people are giving up smoking completely and others are switching to e-vapour products in particular, which are perceived as less harmful to health.
