Report description:

Until recent years, much of the supply of e-vapour products in Bolivia was through small business operators who imported small batches both legally and illegally and sold them in specialised independent stores or through social networks. However, in 2022, there was a significant boost in distribution, with leading tobacco player CITSA entering e-vapour products through its distribution partnership with Aidisa, with e-vapour products now being available in supermarkets for the first time, as a re...
