Report description:

North America Automotive Interior Component Market Research Report Forecast to 2030

Market Overview

The North America Automotive Interior Component Market is consistently growing due to the increasing prominence of electric vehicles. Furthermore, growing consumer demand and market innovation in several parts of North America are likely to drive the region's market throughout the forecast year. The automotive interior components market encompasses the development of infotainment, instrument cluster, telematics, flooring, door panel, automotive seat, and interior lighting. The automotive interior components mainly focus on the ergonomic and comfort of the passenger.

The North America Automotive Interior Component Market is projected to grow at 6.0% CAGR during the forecast period, 2022-2030. In 2021, the North America Automotive Interior Component Market was dominated by the US with a 69.4% share, followed by Mexico, and Canada with shares of 19.2%, and 11.3% respectively in the year 2021.

Market Segmentation

The North America Automotive Interior Component Market has been segmented based on component, vehicle type, and country. Based on components, the North America Automotive Interior Component Market has been segmented into infotainment, instrument cluster, telematics, flooring, automotive seats, door panel, and interior lighting. The automotive seats segment is estimated to grow at 3.5% during the forecast period, while in 2021, and it accounted for a 21.0% share.

Based on Vehicle Type, the North America Automotive Interior Component Market has been segmented into passenger vehicles and commercial vehicles. The commercial vehicle segment is expected to grow at 5.7% during the forecast period and it is expected to hold 80.2% of the North America Automotive Interior Component Market in year 2021.

Major Players

Toyota Boshoku Corporation, Lear Corporation, Faurecia S.A., Continental AG, Visteon Corporation, and Harman International are some key players operating in the North America automotive interior components market.
