Report description:

Headphones is set to return to minimal growth in 2023, after seeing a slight retail volume decline in 2022, although continuous growth has been seen in current value terms due to price rises. The strong positive volume performance during the pandemic has affected the replacement cycle of the category, with many consumers having already purchased products, and did not need to replace their headphones in 2022, with only limited growth expected in 2023. However, TWS earbuds has been able to maintai...
